

LAUGHING LACENAIRE.

On December 14, 1834, a gentleman of distinguished appearance walked briskly along a quiet street near the Chopinette barrier, in Paris.

This pedestrian, who looked distinguished even under the handicap of threadbare garments, was about thirtyfive years old. He was rather small of stature, but carried himself proudly. His face was refined and intellectualthe face of a poet and a dreamer. Indeed, at that hour all Paris was whistling and singing one of his songs, "The Fife and the Drum." He had the hands and hair of an artist, and the joyous carefree laugh of a boy. It was a good thing to hear Lacenaire

Behind Lacenaire there walked a man of vulgar appearance. His name was Avril. He was quite young, not more than twenty-two, and he had been so unfortunate as a criminal that Lacenaire was sorry for him, and was determined to give him a chance to do better work.

Presently they stopped before dwelling of prosperous appearance.

"This is the place," said Lacenaire. Do you remember my instructions quite clearly? Yes? Then allons vite!" The poet rang the doorbell, and the door was opened by a young man.

"Ah, my dear Chardon," cried Lacenaire, "we have come to see your mother on a trifle of business-the mere signing of a paper."

"We are greatly honored, M. Lace-naire," replied Chardon. "Mother, as you know, is an invalid, and is in her bed, but she can do what you ask."

They stood face to face, Chardon and Lacenaire, and the latter gossiped gayly of one thing and another, while Avril stole quietly behind Chardon, and, having stationed himself propgarroted him. Lacenaire drew a dagger then, and stabbed the victim sevthen he went to the room of the inweapon that killed the son.

"There should be 10,000 francs here somewhere, according to my information," said Lacenaire. "Lock the door, my friend, and we'll search till we find the money."

Avril locked the door, and they searched and searched, but all they found was 500 francs. Lacenaire, whose sense of humor was abnormally developed, laughed until the tears rolled down his cheeks. It was this and harrowing occasions, that made him one of the most famous criminals of modern times.

"Is the joke on us or on the Chardons?" he asked, as he wiped the joyto get away. Those dead people were getting on his nerves. So they left he returned to Paris he was attired in

The Bed in Colonial Days.

century the bed increased in importance. A list of the household furnishings of a Salem merchant, in 1690, included "1 great oaken bedd, 1 truckle

bedd of maple, 1 large sack bottom

bedd, 6 Camblett bedd curtains, 2

calicoe bedd curtains, 8 blankett sheets, 1 paire silk bedd curtains."

The settee, which was a link between the settle and the sofa, was sometimes used as a bed. This piece of furniture was both of imported and domestic make. The back and seat were usually incased in turnkey work. With the exception of the arms and braces the entire frame was concealed. The construction of the colonial settee was identical with one type of the Renaissance seat. From Italy it passed into France, and from France to England.

Holland had no part in its development. From the Italian palace of the sixteenth century to the New England home of the seventeenth was a far-away cry and yet, barring crude workmanship, the colonial bench was a faithful copy of the Renalssance de-

Toward the close of the seventeenth over sundry bottles of cheap wine, Lucenaire planned a larger and better

He rented an office and painted an ating the impression that he was a business man. Then, by laying his it seemed that they would always replans carefully, he arranged that a main so, when Francois dropped a few bank messenger should call upon him in his office on a certain day, the chosen day being one on which collections were sure to be large. It took a great ger. Avril's conscience became active this about, but the details are not essential to this story.

Everything being in readiness, Avril was so foolish as to be arrested, while trying to rescue a lady friend from the police. So, at the eleventh hour, Lacenaire had to go forth and seek another assistant. Reliable help of that kind is hard to find when most needed, but after much trouble the poet accepted as his partner a gentleman named that he would kill a man for a sou, which was cheap enough, to be sure.

Francois, however, should have known better than to eat oranges before committing a crime. Or, if he get at his throat. couldn't get along without oranges, he should have realized that it was bad to drop the peel on the floor of a business man's office.

his little bag fairly bulging with tried to appear jaunty and joyous, but money, and securities. Lacenaire, the it was with an effort. He was excited smiling, the fascineting, asked him to and nervous. Being a man of imaginaseat himself at the tabre and examine tion, a poet and artist, death meant certain papers. The messenger did so, more to him than to an ordinary crimiand while the poet engaged him in nat. He fought for self-control with the house, and went to an inn, where, purple and fine linen, and was a credit to the bonlevards.

Meanwhile Francois had been arrested on some trifling charge, and Avril still was in jail. The crimes in assumed name on the door, thus cre- which they had been concerned were complete mysteries to the police, and words which made the police suspiclous, and they drew from him the story of the attack upon the bank messendeal of skillful maneuvering to bring about the same time, and he told of the Chardon murders. So it came to when he learned that the discovery was due to his accomplices, he made full confession, his only object, he said, being to take the betrayers to the guillotine with him.

The trial was a famous one. The most celebrated people of France crowded to the courtroom to see the laughing Lacenaire, who was dressed Francois, to whom homicide was a fad. like a prince. He laughed and joked It was said of him, in his own haunts, throughout the proceedings, and drove Avril and Francois to a frenzy time and time again by his ridicule. Upon several occasions the guards had to hold them, they were so anxious to Francois was sentenced to life imprisonment, and Lacenaire and Avril to death. So one day in 1835 these two made their last appearance in At the appointed hour the bank public. Avril died first, and met his messenger arrived at the office with fate with brutish calmness. Lacenaire

"He Threw His Arm Around Chardon's Neck and Garroted Him."

tion, Francois came up behind, dag- than any physical courage. Badly ger in hand, to stab him to the heart. scared, he tried to seem undaunted. erly, at a wink from the poet he threw Francois, who had studied murder unhis arm around Chardon's neck and der the old masters, knew how to reach the heart from any angle or position. This looked like an easy and eral times, to make the job complete, sure job! But, maledictions on the orange peel! His foot slipped just as valid mother and slew her with the he delivered the blow. The messenger seriously. With a yell of terror he man twisted himself around so that he leaped for the door and reached it first, and ran down the stairs yelling awful, agonized shrick that was never murder. Francols also sped away, forgotten by those who heard it. and Lacenaire followed close at the messenger's heels, also yelling murder, thus diverting suspicion until he reached the street and was lost in the crowd. He felt that Paris was no place for him just then, so he departed for the insensibility, displayed on many tragic provinces, where for a long time he lived opulently. He wrote much poetry at this time, and it was good poetry, which sold readily; but he was too wise to depend upon the muse for a living, so, when not embalming things ous tears from his face. He wanted in song he devoted his genius to forgery, and with great success. When miliar with this settee, as they also Appreciation vs. Thanks.

were with the New England settle.

A boy friend of mine, when delivering milk one day took a little threeyear-old boy along with him. As they approached one of the customers the lady was giving her children some cookies. Seeing the little fellow, she gave him a cooky also. My boy friend asked him, "What do you say to the lady?" And he said, "I want another one."-Cleveland Leader.

Naval Smoke.

In the old days of the navy all pipes—sailors rarely smoked tobacco in any other form-were lighted from a lamp in the forecastle, and the hours when smoking is permitted are still indicated by the use of this lamp, although the modern sailor is permitted to light a match when he desires to

Cheese for the Multitude. Wisconsin sends out a trainload of sign. The Dutch settlers were unfa- cheese every day of the year.

conversation, and held his whole atten- | a mental courage that is more heroic But it was his fate to undergo an extraordinary ordeal that would break down any courage. The guillotine wouldn't work. Time and again the ax descended to within an inch or two of his neck and then stuck, and the executioner fumbled with it, raised it, was stabbed, but not mortally, or even and let it fall again. The tortured could look upward, and uttered an

But the shriek was cut in two. The ax worked at last.

Another Way to Rejuvenate Eggs.

A Maryland man has found a means of preserving eggs with a substance known as "liquid petrolatum," which he claims will rapidly penetrate eggs, when applied externally, and make them proof against moisture or bacteria. The preserving substance is a mixture of hydro-carbons. When properly treated, eggs can be preserved under a normal temperature for many weeks without deteriorating.-Popular Science Monthly.

Boxes From Waste Newspapers.

Waste newspapers are used almost exclusively in the manufacture of the cardboard or pasteboard which goes to form the pasteboard box in which dressmakers, shoemakers and department stores generally deliver dresses, suits, shoes, etc., and one of the largest factories in the United States for the manufacture of this kind of cardboard is located just outside of Philadelphia on the Schuylkill river at Manayunk.

Common Mistake.

"What's your opinion of Bommaster?" "Well, when I first met him he impressed me as being a leader of men, a 10,000-volt human dynamo, clarion-voiced czar who would brook no opposition; but when I met him the second time, in his office, I sized him up for a pusilianimous mouse." "Where did you meet him the first time?" "On the telephone."

Unfair.

It is unfair to call woman a timid creature, when it is universally conceded that she is as brave as an elephant.-Judge.

LABOR CONDEMNS SALOON.

"The time has come in this country when even men who take an occasional drink and feel it their right and pass that the poet was arrested, and privilege to do so, if they please, are coming to agree that it is not right for a man to make it his business to cultivate the vices of a community, and to take from men money that belongs to their families, giving them in exchange liquid madness, brutality, insanity and damnation."

These words were spoken by Rev. William B. Millard in an address at a remarkable labor meeting held in Garrick theater, Chicago. "The labor union, like the church," continued Mr. Millard, "should regard the open saloon as its greatest enemy. The time has come, nay is so near, that the rosy radiance of the glorious dawn already greets our eyes, when the saloon will be abolished and the barkeeper outlawed, so that a man may no longer be waylaid on payday and sent home to his broken-hearted wife and terrifled little ones a raging, loathsome, penniless beast."

Tremendous applause greeted these sentiments. The theater was packed to utmost capacity with representatives of union labor.

RED ROSES INSTEAD.

The place formerly occupied by one of Spokane's most notorious saloons is now a "brilliantly lighted, cleansmelling" market where "chops, cabbages and groceries replace the foam. ing brew" once sold there in great abundance. At the same counter where "red noses" were formerly in line, a fair maiden now dispenses 'red roses," and at the site of the former "big bar," young men are now busy dealing out fresh meats of all kinds. Nobody but the former brewer and saloonkeeper complains that "business is ruined under prohibition. "Spokane is feeling right smart pert under prohibition, thank you!"

CUTS CITY'S EXPENSES.

Mayor Anderson of The Dalles, Oregon, furnishes this bit of testimony:

"Since the first of the year, when the prohibition law went into effect, all lines of business have improved. This changed condition is particular-ly noticeable in groceries and meat markets, both cash business and collections showing a marked gain. The following figures are taken from our official records and show the effect of prohibition on the police court:

Arrests for Cost of Feeding Drunkenness.
Jan. and Feb., 1912, 42 $131.65
Jan. and Feb., 1913 84 122.06
Jan. and Feb., 1914, 137 189.75
Jan. and Feb., 1915, 67 64 24 Jan. and Feb., 1916, 2.....

TESTIMONY FROM ILLINOIS.

According to the records of the police officials in Illinois dry cities have 75 per cent less crime to contend with than wet cities of the same size. Aurora, while under the saloon administration, had 1,005 arrests for drunkenness, while in dry Rockford, with the same population, there were only 719 arrests. Wet Joliet had 1,682 arrests for drunkenness while dry Decatur had 966. Both towns are of the same size. Still another instance was the 3,819 arrests in East St. Louis as against 454 in dry Galesburg. The reports show that the majority of these arrests was due to the introduction of liquor from the surrounding wet territory.

TEETOTALERS WIN.

In Germany a walking contest was conducted over a course of 62 miles. Eighty-one men entered the contest, of whom only 24 were abstainers, but the first four men who crossed the line were abstainers. Of the ten prizewinners, six were teetotalers and two had been abstaining for some time while in training. More than half of the non-abstainers fell out by the way. but only two of the 24 abstainers.

THEY WORK ANYWAY.

"It's the women," growled a portly saloonist. "They are behind all of this. They will find out. If they are going to run things, we are going to let them work." Whereupon, his quickwitted listener remarked, "The wives of drinking men always have had to work. If they have to choose between a sober husband and work, or a drunken man and work anyway, I think they will take the dry man."

LAW WELL ENFORCED.

Following various rumors that the prohibition law was being violated the chief of police of Centralia, Wash., of fered $20 reward from his own purse for information leading to the convic tion of a bootlegger. The chief de clares there is not one in the city. Tora man who said he could get whisky, the chief gave a dollar to buy a bottle. The dollar was later returned.

MEN AND Ridney trouble prey upon the mind, dis courages and lessen ambition; beauty, vig or and cheerfulness often disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. For good results use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists. Sample size bottle by Parcel Post, also pamphlet.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. T., and enclose ten cents. When writing mention this paper.

THICK, SWOLLEN GLANDS

that make a horse Wheeze, Roar, have Thick Wind or Choke-down, can be also other Bunches or Swellings. No blister, no hair gone, and horse kept at work. Economical—only a few drops required at an application. $2 per bottle delivered. $80$ $ $ free.

ABSORBINE

ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Cysts, Wens, Painful, Swollen Veins and Ulcers. $1 and $2 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Book "Evidence" free. W.F.YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Student Nurses Needed Sept. 1st and Oct. 1st.

The course of instruction given qualifies graduates for admission to the best Nursing Organizations, including the Red Cross; also for registration in Ohio, New York and other states.

Exceptional advantages - Modern Nurses' Home; fully equipped Class Rooms; eight hour schedule; allowance of $5.00 per month with uniforms and text books after three months probationary period; two years of high school required for entrance. Full particulars address

Miss Frederika K. Gaiser Superintendent of Nurses

City Hospital Cleveland, O.

W. N. U., CINCINNATI. NO. 34-1916.

BLIND PLEAD WITH INVENTOR

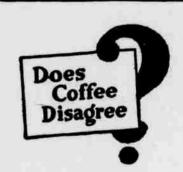

Liquefied Radium Helps to Restore Sight-May Be "Great Discovery."

More than six thousand blind persons, by deputy or directly through the mails, have besieged Ethan I. Dodds. the Pittsburgh inventor of radium screen "eyes," pleading piteously with him to restore their sight. Mr. Dodds, with the aid of liquefied radium, did succeed some months ago in improving if not restoring the vision of a man who suffered a peculiar visual ailment that had made him blind. Talking of that achievement, the inventor, who already had spent two fortunes experimenting along that line, said he'd give all he could ever hope to possess in this world if he could only promise sight to a few of the blind who had thus appealed to him. But, as yet, he was "only on the edge of a great discovery," and could not, without many added qualities, hope to apply it in any general way to the restoration

Now Mr. Dodds has received from sightless sufferers more than six thousand pathetic appeals; some of them accompanied by signed checks in blank, saying: "Fill out for any amount you choose, if you can give me back my eyes."-Pittsburgh Post.

The sunlight of happiness seldom falls on a shady reputation.

Many are not aware of the ill effects of coffee drinking until a bilious attack, frequent headaches, nervousness, or some other ailment starts them thinking.

Ten days off coffee and on

POSTUM

-the pure food-drink-will show anyone, by the better health that follows, how coffee has been treating them.

"There's a Reason"

POSTUM

Sold by Grocers